Trump’s victory: A historic window for change, starting at the UN

written by Gilad Erdan | 07.11.2024
Washington must revive Trump’s “maximum pressure” campaign against Iran, this time backed by military threat and clear goal of regime change in Tehran.

No forgiveness for those who don’t stand with Israel

written by David M. Weinberg | 07.11.2024
At this time of forgiveness, why should we forgive those who do not stand with us in our hour of need?

From Kfar Aza to the world: A powerful portrait of Israel’s solitude

written by Arsen Ostrovsky | 07.11.2024
Bernard Lévy recounts his harrowing experience in Israel following the October 7th Hamas attack, capturing the deep isolation and suffering of the Jewish state and highlighting its isolation.

Time to Launch Abraham Accords 2.0

written by Asher Fredman | 07.11.2024

The potential of the Abraham Accords to transform the Middle East from a source of conflict into a hub of innovation, economic growth, and tolerance not only remains, but is more urgent than ever.

How to Improve Israel’s Public Diplomacy

written by Lahav Harkov | 07.11.2024

Israel needs a formal, professional public diplomacy infrastructure in peacetime that will be prepared when crises occur.

Palestinian state recognition and ICJ proceedings are a prize for Hamas written by Meir Ben Shabbat | 07.11.2024

Israel will need to do everything it is currently doing for its security without compromises, and rely only on itself.

Anti-Zionism isn’t new

written by David M. Weinberg | 07.11.2024
Western editorial cartoonists were fiercely anti-Israel 35 years ago too.

Ten myths about UNRWA

written by Dr. Adi Schwartz | 07.11.2024
It is not a neutral, efficient, indispensable, or moderating force, nor can it simply be fixed by better oversight. It must be replaced for the sake of Palestinians and Israelis alike.

UNRWA has No Place in Gaza on the Day After Hamas

written by Dr. Adi Schwartz | 07.11.2024
Closing down UNRWA is necessary to create the conditions for stability and peace