Hezbollah is an Army: Israel Confronts Formidable Enemy on

Its Northern Border

written by Col. (res.) Dr. Hanan Shai | 27.06.2024

Col. (res.) Dr. Hanan Shai: In recent years, there has been criticism of the unprepared Israeli soldier. The current war proved otherwise in very well-trained and well-equipped soldiers. However, it is important to remember that Hezbollah will be fighting on its home turf, giving them a huge advantage. Adding to the challenge is the very mountainous terrain in southern Lebanon and the likely existence of tunnels and mines in many areas. It is hard to overestimate the value of US assistance to Israel, and an attack on Hezbollah cannot be done without advance coordination with the US. US support for such an attack will depend on how it assesses Israel's ability to succeed in such an attack.

This Can't Go On

written by Prof. Kobi Michael | 27.06.2024

Prof. Kobi Michael: There are significant gaps between the American and Israeli positions on the war in Gaza. Israel has made mistakes, and the prime minister has often publicized issues that should have remained private, but I believe the US has an erroneous understanding of the conflict. The US doesn't understand Hamas and wants to believe a cease-fire will solve everything — the conflict with Hezbollah, with the Houthis, with Iran. They insist on ending the war in Gaza at any price, even to the extent of going against Israeli interests.

Can Israel defeat Hamas?

written by Prof. Kobi Michael | 27.06.2024

Prof. Kobi Michael said he was not convinced Hagari meant to directly disparage Israel's military strategy, but he said he could see how his comments would be taken that way.

He was trying to say the truth. But he said he believed Netanyahu understood that truth — and that Israel's goal was ultimately to prevent Hamas from being able to regroup and maintain power in Gaza.

The problem was about the interpretation and the analysis of the information

written by Prof. Kobi Michael | 27.06.2024

Prof. Kobi Michael: From the very beginning, the problem was not with regard to the information, which was there. The problem was about the interpretation and the analysis of the information.

In the level of the Gaza division, things were known in such a detailed manner. It is very annoying and frustrating that the information was there, and we were not there with the information.

Israel uses 14th-century trebuchet to throw fireballs into Lebanon

written by Prof. Kobi Michael | 27.06.2024

Prof. Kobi Michael: If it as it looks, it demonstrates the outcome of huge frustration of the IDF reservists about the asymmetry between the destruction caused by Hezbollah and the irrelevance of the Israeli response.
