

U.S. Influence on Jordan, Egypt's Stance on Gaza, and Saudi Priorities

written by Asher Fredman | 11.02.2025

Asher Fredman: "The United States has many levers over Jordan. The United States is Jordan's largest export market. Jordan greatly benefits from the Jordan-U.S. free trade agreement, whereas the U.S. benefits much less. Jordan benefits very greatly from economic support and military support. If President Trump does want to put significant pressure on the King, he can do that."

"Egypt could be an important midpoint for Gazans who are then departing to other Arab or Muslim countries, or even Western countries that are willing to accept them. Ideally, you would have a number of countries, not just one or two, but a number of countries each taking a number of Gazans—of course, those who are voluntarily willing to leave."

"Egypt has taken in over 400,000 Sudanese refugees over the last several years. So, they're willing to take in 400,000 Sudanese but want to take zero Gazans. That also says something about how Egypt views Gazans, unfortunately."

"What Saudi Arabia truly wants is what it can get from the United States—whether in the security and defense realm or the civilian nuclear realm. There is strong, authentic support for the Palestinian people among both the Saudi leadership and the Saudi people. On the other hand, they know much better than most—maybe not better than President Trump, but much better than people in Europe or the West—how corrupt and inefficient the Palestinian Authority is, and that Hamas is a Muslim Brotherhood arm."

Israel slams Palestinian ‘deception scheme’ over claim it halted terror rewards program

written by Asher Fredman | 11.02.2025

Asher Fredman in Fox News on PA President Abbas’ Claim that Palestinian ‘Pay for Slay’ Payments have Stopped: Abbas’ announcement seems to be a ruse aimed at pulling the wool over President Trump’s eyes.

It appears that the terrorists and families of terrorists who received payments under the PA’s ‘Pay for Slay’ program will continue to receive the same payments, simply via a ‘foundation’ under the control of Abbas, rather than via a ministry under the control of Abbas.

It remains to be seen whether Abbas truly ends the Pay to Slay payments, as well as the virulent terror incitement and antisemitism in PA media, schools and summer camps.

Egypt's large military presence in Sinai continues to raise questions

written by Moshe Fuzaylov | 11.02.2025

Moshe Fuzaylov: Israel approved for Egypt on different occasions to bring forces into Sinai [in excess of those permitted in the peace treaty], and we are today with a massive order of battle of the Egyptian Army in Sinai.

They built in Sinai three airfields; at least one airfield is for fighter jets. They built huge reserves of gasoline and diesel. Egypt also built large storage tunnels in Sinai for strategic storage of military gear, and transport links that could enable large formations to arrive in Sinai within a few hours.

Legal and Strategic Realities: Assessing Trump's Gaza Proposal

written by Arsen Ostrovsky | 11.02.2025

Arsen Ostrovsky: For many years, including since October 7th, the international community has had the same failing strategy that allows Hamas to remain in power, and that is simply unacceptable.

There doesn't appear to be anything illegal or contrary to international law with respect to the proposal as it is and that this is not about ethnic cleansing or forcible transfer. Trump is not talking about forcibly removing anyone but rather creating circumstances that allow Gazans to voluntarily choose to move.

Those insisting that Gazans stay there, in an active war zone, essentially being used as human shields by Hamas, may be the ones violating international law.

Anyone that supports a better future for Gaza and peace in the Middle East should embrace the plan.

Iran's foreign minister responds to Trump 'maximum pressure' campaign amid regime panic written by Dr. Yossi Mansharof | 11.02.2025

Dr. Yossi Mansharof: Despite oil sanctions on Iran, data from the Energy Information Administration (EIA) reveals that Iran's oil revenue surged to $144 billion in the first three years of Biden's presidency (January 2021-January 2024), $100 billion more than during the last two years of the Trump administration.

While Biden tightened sanctions, he did not enforce them, allowing Iran to continue profiting from oil exports, providing critical support to its economy. This approach reflects a flawed strategy of attempting to engage Ali Khamenei [the supreme leader of Iran] diplomatically while ignoring Iran's oil smuggling.

it is unclear whether this strategy is sufficient. Military pressure on Iran is needed to disrupt its activities, send a clear message on its nuclear ambitions, and prevent further destabilizing actions.

‘Trump Has Ability to Twist Arms’

written by Asher Fredman | 11.02.2025

Asher Fredman: Gazans won't be able to leave in large numbers if Hamas gunmen are stopping people from leaving. A military campaign would first have to weaken Hamas enough to keep it from barring Palestinians from emigrating.

But there won't be military operations against Hamas while [ceasefire] negotiations are ongoing during the second or third stage of the hostage deal. I don't see Hamas releasing all of the living hostages in any scenario because they know that Israel would strike the next day once all the hostages are out. Tragically, they're going to keep a few of the hostages as insurance.

Hezbollah's influence in Lebanon's army remains under scrutiny written by Brig. Gen. (res.) Yossi Kuperwasser | 11.02.2025

Brig. Gen. (res.) Yossi Kuperwasser: Hezbollah's ability to manipulate the LAF has weakened considerably over the past year due to the damage it absorbed in the war against Israel. However, Hezbollah retains influence and ties within Lebanon, including Lebanon's government structures and military.

A thorough analysis should be conducted, and the Americans should be approached to replace compromised personnel [in the LAF] with individuals who can be trusted. Overall, while the LAF is moving slower and less effectively than Israel would like, its deployment is nevertheless "moving forward, slowly.

You can't make America great again by making it retreat again written by Dr. David Wurmser | 11.02.2025

Dr. David Wurmser: t's actually what hasn't happened. There's no crisp definition of what MAGA is, going forward, and what we're seeing now is a battle over the soul of the movement. The term-turned-epithet "neoconservatism" became a kind of clarion call on the part of those who hated Israel, were antisemitic or classic leftists like "The Squad." It became a rubric, and the Iraq War became a symbol of how "evil" the neoconservatives were. Of course, the history of that war has been distorted. The people I was dealing with at the time had a very different vision of how it would progress from the way it's been depicted by detractors. It was much less a colonialist American vision than an Iraqi one. It was Colin Powell's vision to go in with 600,000 troops, and then it was Paul Bremer's idea to have a colonial presence in Iraq to rebuild the country. That was horrifying to many of us. We wanted Iraqis to do the heavy lifting of liberating their country; we wanted them to assume control as fast as possible. Our model was the Free French in World War II.

Trump's Gaza Displacement Plan Could Ignite Regional Instability

written by Prof. Kobi Michael | 11.02.2025

Prof. Kobi Michael: Displacement is not a logistical issue; it's a matter of national identity. The Nakba is deeply ingrained in Palestinian consciousness, and any suggestion of relocation—even temporary—will be perceived as ethnic cleansing and will intensify hostility.

Strengthening the U.S.-Israel Alliance

written by Asher Fredman | 11.02.2025

Asher Fredman: The new U.S. administration offers a chance to deepen U.S.-Israel ties in order to advance regional stability and shared interests. Expanding regional multilateral initiatives, military collaboration, and AI innovation will enhance shared security and economic growth. Countering Iran through sanctions and supporting pro-democracy movements is key to stability.

Addressing biased international institutions will protect both nations.
Strengthening this alliance will help shape a safer and more prosperous future.
