

Beyond the strike: What Tehran's next move means for the Middle East

written by Moshe Fuzaylov | 26.10.2024

Iran's strategic calculations face a pivotal moment as Israel demonstrates unprecedented reach.

Hitting Tehran via Beirut and Gaza: Dismantling Iranian confidence

written by Meir Ben Shabbat | 26.10.2024

Proxy organizations have become negative marketing agents for Iran, as the Middle East recognizes the destruction they bring.

Calls for intervention: Will Iran send forces to aid Hezbollah against Israel?

written by Dr. Yossi Mansharof | 26.10.2024

The Iranian regime appears to be blocking initiatives to send forces to Lebanon, likely because it recognizes that the damage from such a move would outweigh the potential benefits.

The Iranian nuclear program should be the next target

written by Elie Klutstein | 26.10.2024

Israel's actions against Hezbollah, culminating in Nasrallah's assassination, along with the continued pounding of Hamas, have restored much of its deterrence and respect in the Middle East. Now, Israel must charge towards the next objective – eliminating Iran's nuclear program.

Is Washington paying-off Teheran with nuclear coin?

written by David M. Weinberg | 26.10.2024

Misguided American de-escalation efforts could cost Israel.

Israel must assume that Iranian weapons always reach its proxies

written by Dr. Yossi Mansharof | 26.10.2024

Tehran has smuggled into Gaza a significant arsenal of UAVs, missiles, rockets, weapons, and more. It also has provided Hamas and PIJ terrorists with terrorist training in Iranian-based camps.

Iran now faces a Hobson's choice

written by Dr. David Wurmser | 26.10.2024

The impotence of a regime whose sole currency is based on a reign of terror is being exposed.

Iran knows it will lose proxies by the end of the war

written by Meir Ben Shabbat | 26.10.2024

The elimination of Haniyeh now puts Iran on the same level as its proxies and dependents. Israel will be freer to confront Tehran's octopus and its other arms and establish a regional anti-Iranian coalition from a position of strength.

The Palestinian State: A Springboard for Iran's Plan to Destroy Israel

written by Dr. Yossi Mansharof | 26.10.2024

Hamas will easily take control of a Palestinian state if it is established, and under Iran's sponsorship will advance towards the shared goal of destroying Israel. Israel must launch an intensive and comprehensive campaign against Iran and Hamas.

Can Israel strike Iran successfully?

written by Elie Klutstein | 26.10.2024

Even if Israel had the heaviest bunker-busting bombs, it would be difficult to deliver them to the target.
