

Biden debate performance won't sway Israel-Hezbollah war considerations

Asher Fredman: it doesn't appear the Biden administration is going to hold back munitions that Israel needs. I think Israel is not particularly counting on the U.S. to help beyond that.

While President Biden's performance at the debate may not directly impact Israel's short-term calculations with regards to Hezbollah, it may well encourage Iran to use the next half year to advance its nuclear weapons program. In such a case, Israel will be forced to decide whether it is prepared to act militarily against Iran's nuclear program, which would likely lead to a high-intensity war with Hezbollah as well.
