

Now is the time to destroy the Iranian threat

Dr. Yossi Mansharof: Trump wants Tehran to negotiate seeks to bring Iran to a point where the regime understands that the nuclear program not only fails to advance its goals but actually endangers it and Iran's national security.

That being said Trump has made it clear that if Iran does not respond to his offer to negotiate, the U.S. itself will attack Iran.

I believes Trump wants to make Iran understand that continuing the current course—progress in the nuclear program, regional entrenchment, sponsoring Iran's proxy network and developing the missile program—will harm the regime, and therefore, it would be in Iran's own interest to reach an agreement with the U.S. in these three areas.
